Adnane started dancing in 2000 with his local Breakdance (bboy) group back in Paris, France. The following year, he started dancing to the House music he had been listening to since the late 1980's.

Throughout the years, Adnane has increased his knowledge in the culture of House and his catalogue of steps and moves. He achieved success in several House Dance competitions and has organised contests as well.

Adnane has danced in the most celebrated House Dance spots in Europe and Canada and has supported artists such as Public Enemy.

Adnane has been teaching House Dance for four years. He is still involved in the Breakdance and Hip Hop culture, and is able to incorporate the influence of elements such as floor techniques and locking into House Dance.
